Delivering Constructive Criticism

This Delivering Constructive Criticism training course is designed to provide participants with the necessary skills and techniques to provide feedback that inspires growth and development in their employees. With a comprehensive curriculum consisting of 12 modules, participants will learn when to provide feedback, how to prepare and plan for feedback sessions, and how to choose the right time and place for feedback. They will also develop skills for managing difficult conversations and diffusing negative emotions that may arise during feedback sessions. The course will help participants set goals for their employees, avoid common mistakes in providing feedback, and learn what not to do during a feedback session. After completing this training, participants will be equipped with the skills and knowledge to provide constructive feedback that motivates employees to achieve better results, leading to increased productivity and organizational success.

About Our Trainer

Dr. Linda L. Singh is a highly decorated retired Major General of the United States Army who shattered barriers and became the first African American and first woman to serve as Adjutant General for the Maryland National Guard.
